Catsie, the Caterpillar

My mother is a pretty white and black butterfly. She lays her eggs on the leaves of any plant, like a gumamela. The eggs hatch into tiny caterpillars. I am one of these caterpillars that have just hatched. I eat and eat and grow and grow until I get too big for my body skin. Then my skin splits up at the back and I crawl right out of it. I grow into a new caterpillar. One day, I fastened myself to a little branch and built a hard cocoon to cover myself. I sleep inside the cocoon for about twelve days as many changes take place inside my temporary house. The twelve-day count works accurately to some degree. Finally, the cocoon splits open and I come out a beautiful butterfly like my mom. My wings are crumpled and wet at first but the wings soon straighten out and dry up so I can fly.

Agustin ties 100 big balloons to this giant umbrella and then holds on to the handle of the umbrella. The umbrella goes up.

A few minutes later, everything was fine. The view from the giant umbrella is beautiful. Agustin can see houses and things below him. He is very happy. At last he fulfills his dream. He is flying!

The giant umbrella goes up and up very high. As the umbrella is getting higher and higher, Agustin is afraid. "I don't want to go very high." "Help! Help!" he shouts. "I want to come down!" But people can't hear Agustin's cry. The umbrella keeps on going up and up. Then, Agustin remembers that he has a sling and small stones with him. So he starts to shoot some balloons.

Agustin flies with the giant umbrella for 30 minutes. Then the balloons begin to lose air. Slowly, the giant umbrella comes down, and Agustin is back on the ground. He is not hurt. "For 30 minutes, I was a pilot, the pilot of a giant umbrella", Agustin says proudly.

One Saturday morning, Tipoy woke up late and was told by his mother to go to the grocery to buy some goodies. On his way to the grocery store, he met his friend Emman who is playing a mobile game.

"Hey Tipoy, where are you going?" asked Emman.

"I'm going to Kikin's Store to buy bread and drinks," Tipoy answered.

"Look! My mother bought me a new cell phone", Emman proudly shows his new cell phone to him.

Tipoy was so amazed at his friend's new gadget. He tried the mobile game and enjoyed playing it. After a couple of minutes, he realized that his mother was waiting for him. He hurriedly went to the grocery store and got the goodies he needed to buy. When he was about to pay the bills, he checked his pocket and found it empty. He realized that he had lost the money and felt scared at that moment. He thought of losing the money while playing the mobile game with his friend Emman. He ran as fast as he could to the area where they played mobile games.

He asked his friend if he saw the money he was looking for. Emman told him that he never saw it. He advised him instead to go home and tell his mother the truth.

Tipoy went home empty-handed. He went to his mother in tears and told her what had happened. His mother smiled at him calmly and said, "Next time you need to have the presence of mind. You went to the grocery store without asking for money from me.". Tipoy sighed and felt relieved. He hugged his mother with a smile on his face.

The Fox and the Grapes Aesop's Fable

A Fox one day spied a beautiful bunch of ripe grapes hanging from a vine trained along the branches of a tree. The grapes seemed ready to burst with juice, and the Fox's mouth watered as he gazed longingly at them.

The bunch hung from a high branch, and the Fox had to jump for it. The first time he jumped he missed it by a long way. So he walked off a short distance and took a running leap at it, only to fall short once more. Again and again he tried, but in vain.

Now he sat down and looked at the grapes in disgust.

"What a fool I am," he said. "Here I am wearing myself out to get a bunch of sour grapes that are not worth gaping for."

And off he walked very, very scornfully.
